WHY YOU SHOULDN'T EVEN DREAM

ABOUT VISITING POLAND

It's not true that this is a country of romantic landscapes.

The spring is here not as breathtaking as the Poles usually describe it.
Just another pretty simple season that follows the winter.

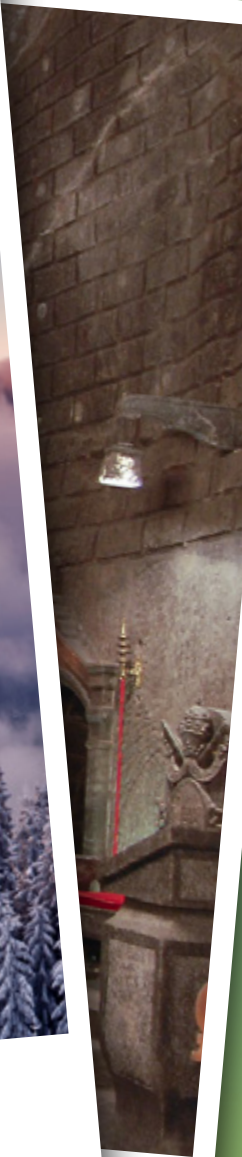

The autumn is, in turn, blue and depressing.

And the winter simply grey and boring.

Let's be honest. The nature has also especially nothing to offer in here.

Also the history is not a thing to be particularly proud of.

Consequently, you can hardly see an interesting architecture in there.

Even though there are rumours that the Poles have their own Versailles.

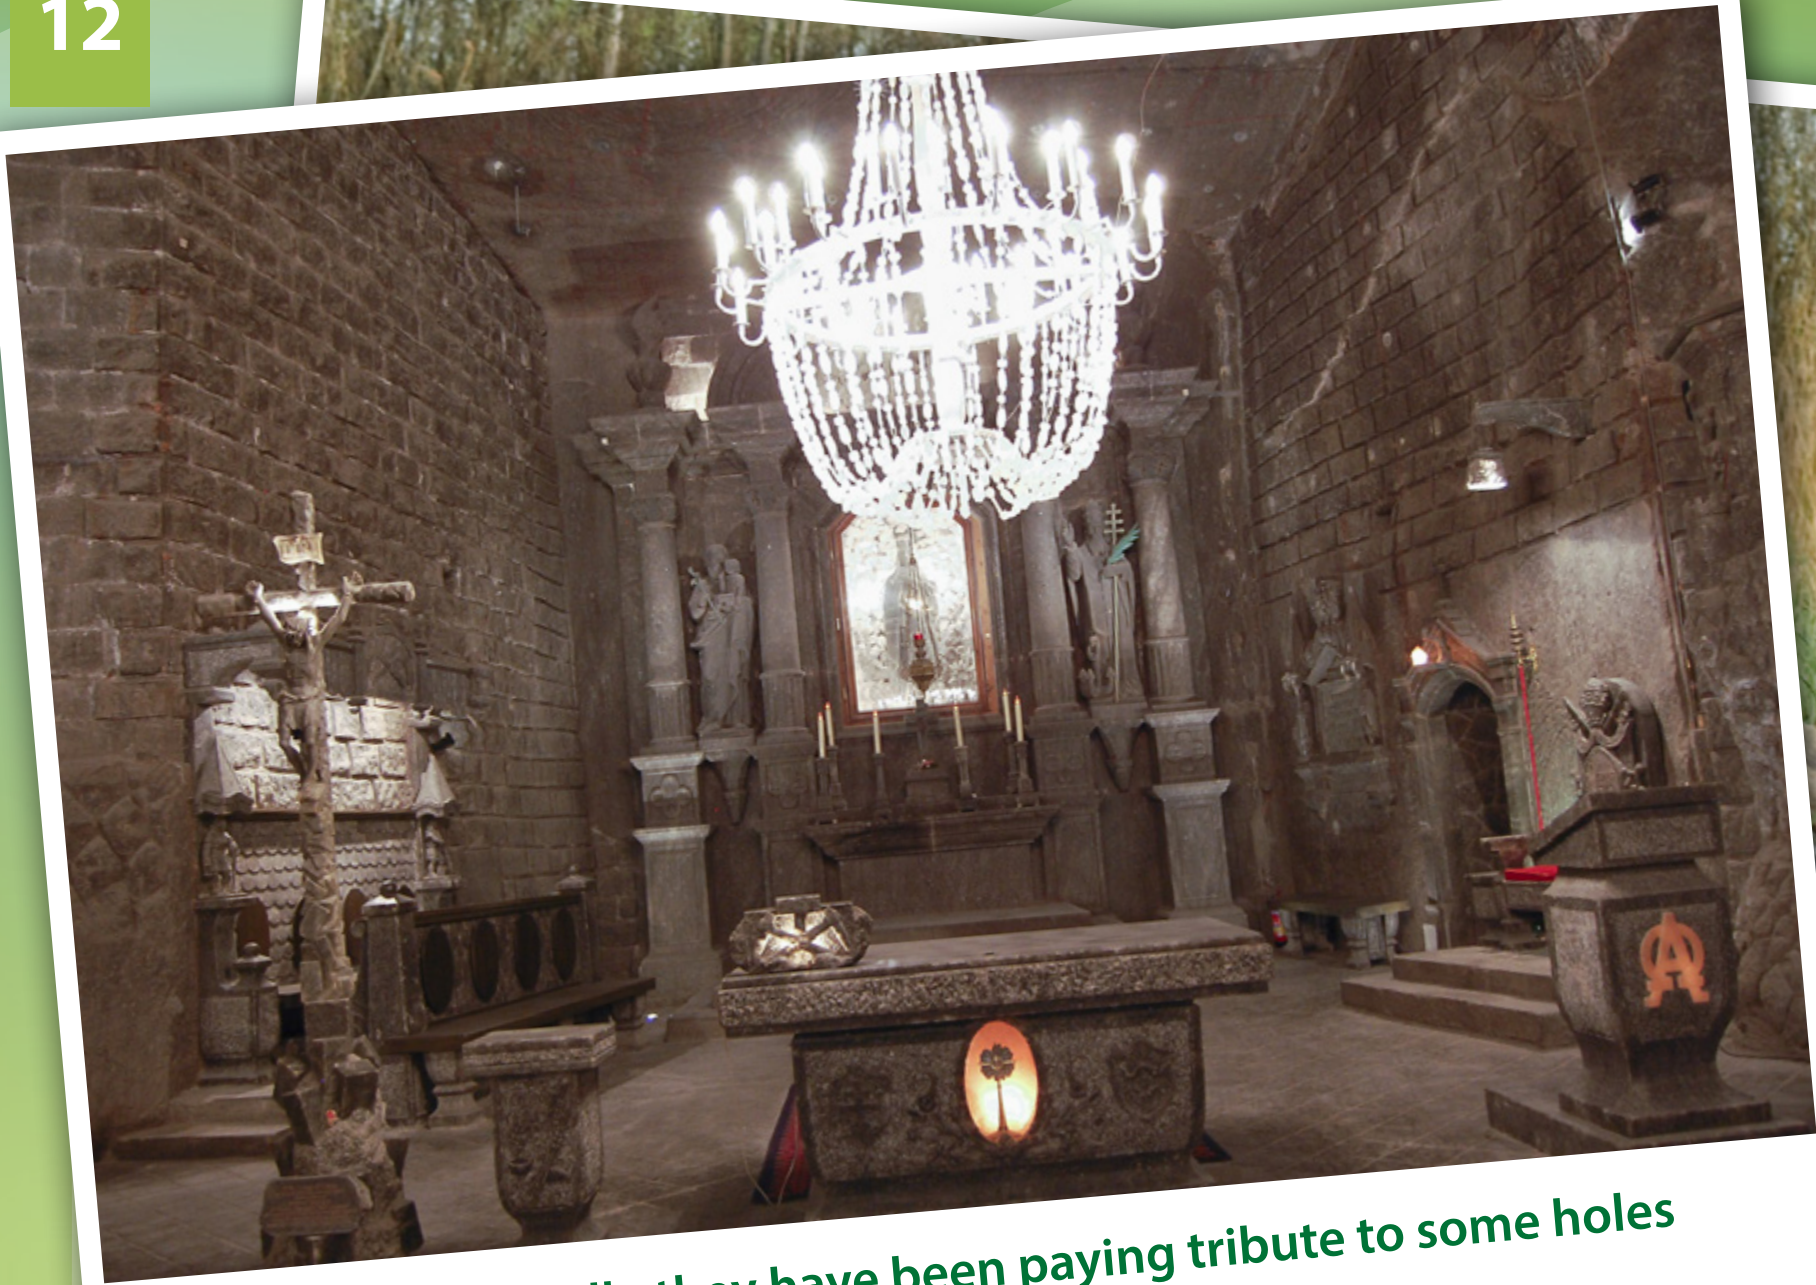

Or even some kind of Venice... but this is truly too much said.

Their cities are dirty, frowzy and grey.

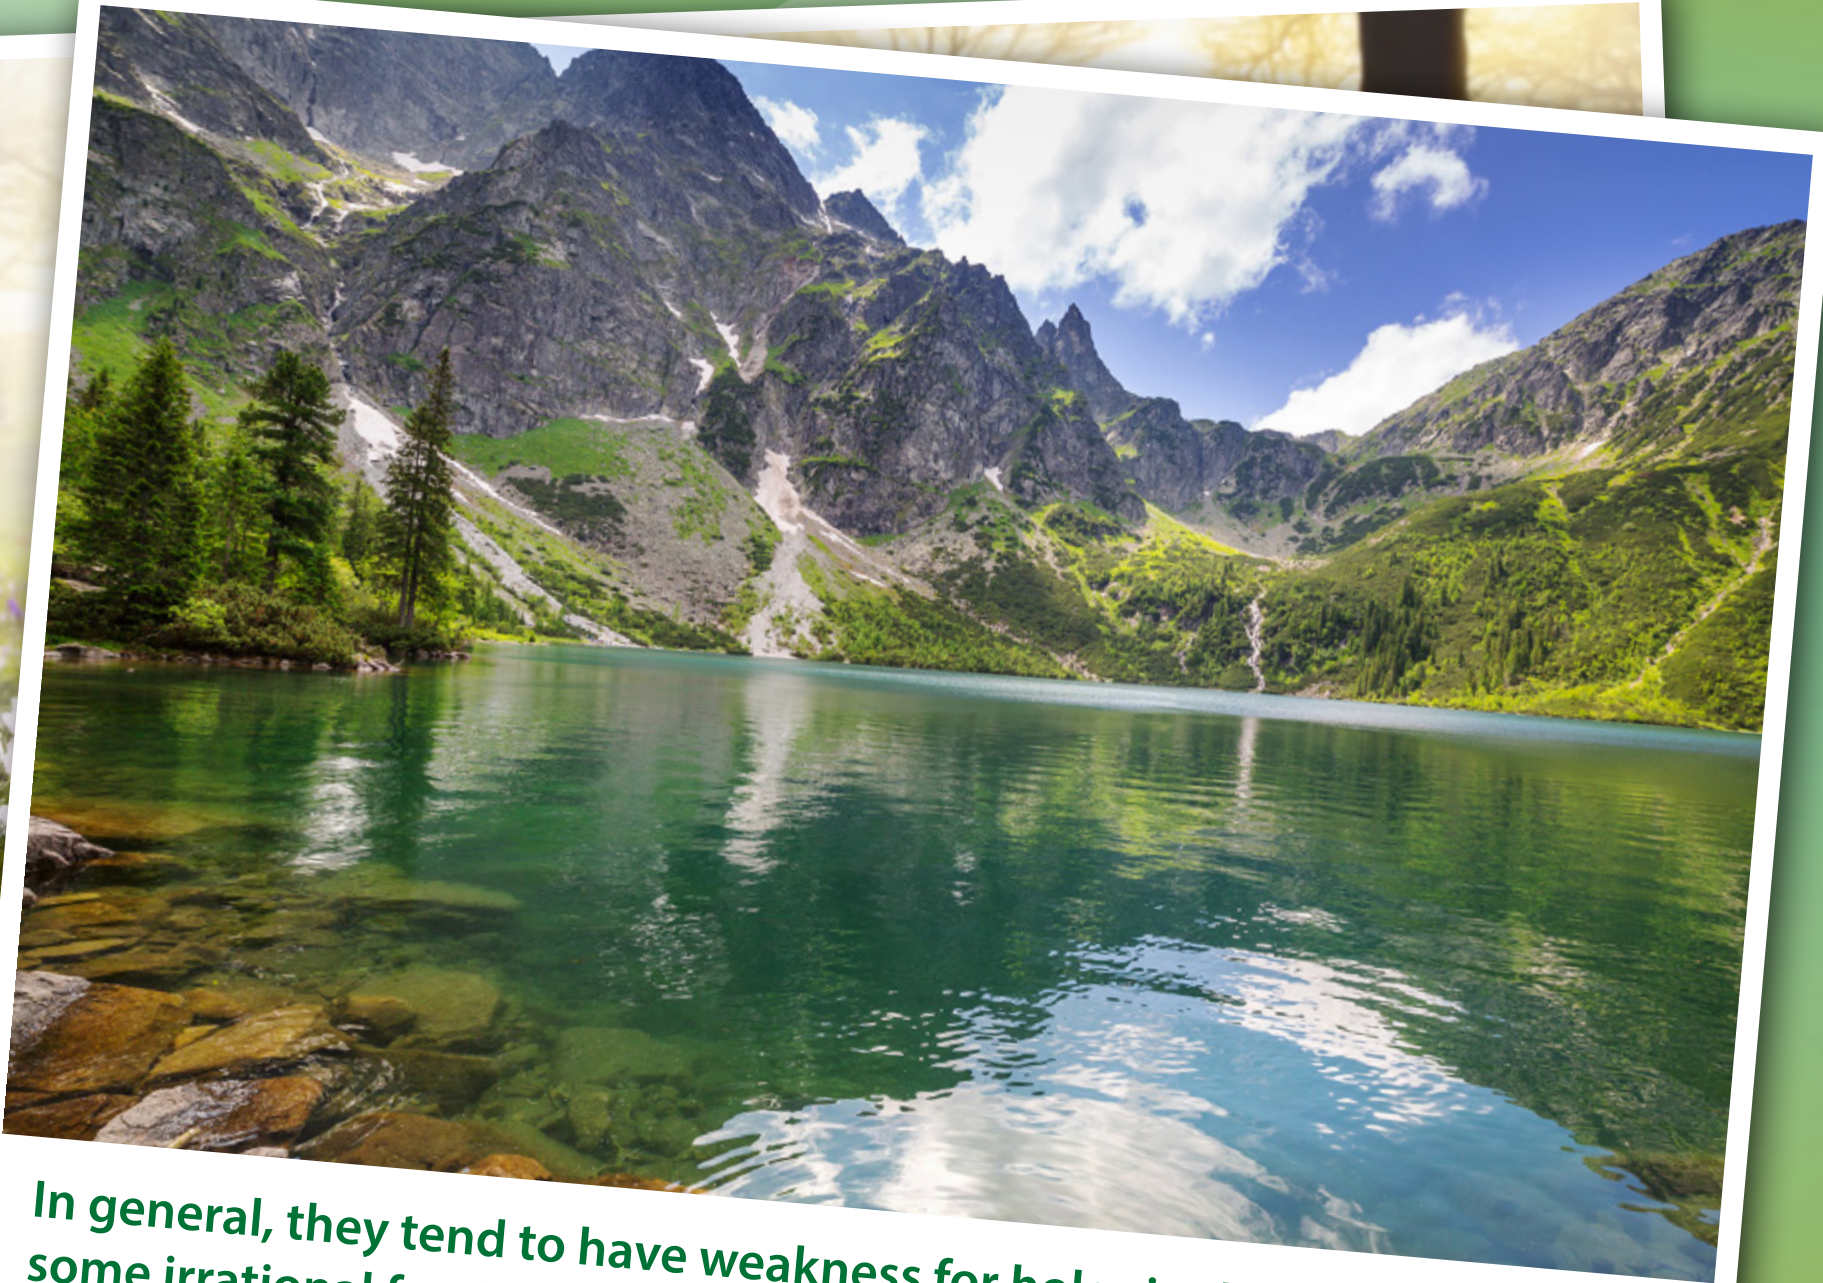

Modernity is a distant point on the horizon.

But this is still not all - they have been paying tribute to some holes carved of salt for eight centuries now.

In general, they tend to have weakness for holes in the ground and show some irrational fascination for spectacular post-glacial hollows.

Hard to guess why, but they are also extremely proud of a few puddles located somewhere in Masuria.

Overall - you will hardly see something normal in there.
Just take a look at this woodland.

..... ARE YOU REALLY INTERESTED
IN VISITING THIS UNINTERESTING
..... COUNTRY? ;-)
